

Master of Education (MEd)

Educational Technology

Program of Study Planning Sheet

Department of Instructional Technology Utah State University

Overview: This program is specifically designed for public school teachers and administrators who want to increase their understanding of the role of technology and its appropriate implementation in the teaching and learning process. The Educational Technology (EdTech) Master's program can provide career advancement and technical confidence. The program mission is to help individuals design, integrate, and implement various forms of technology and instructional design skills into their current and future teaching and administrative assignments.

Program: The expected timeline is six semesters to complete a program of study with a minimum of 37 credits. In addition to completing the listed coursework and culminating experience, students are required to complete a portfolio to submit to their chairperson by the end of their final semester.

The Program of Study is under the direction and approval of the program advisor and graduate chairperson. The above is the expected sequence for courses in this cohort. Each student works with the program advisor (currently, Sheri Haderlie) to establish a Program of Study and obtain graduate school approval. A graduate chairperson should be chosen by the student by fall semester of the second year. Students work with their chairperson for their culminating experience and their portfolio.

Note: No more than 15 semester credits of 5000-5999 coursework may be used for a master's degree. No more than 12 workshop credits may be applied to a master's degree. A maximum of 12 credits of previous coursework before admittance into the program may be applied to your program. These credits cannot have been used for another degree, endorsement, or certification.
